

Abstract

A household pillow, used to support the head, neck and shoulders etc., is totally filled with softer material or softer shape, with no void within.

In this invention, called hereafter "Supertech Pillow," two unequal diameter tubes of spongy material are connected diagonally across the width providing a springy yet positive support.